Understanding Maryland Discrimination Laws

Every Marylander is guaranteed equal opportunity in receiving employment and in all labor management-union relations regardless of race, color, religion, ancestry or national origin, sex, age, marital status, sexual orientation, Gender identity, disability or genetic information.

Examples of Illegal Discrimination in Maryland

- No discrimination is permitted in recruiting, interviewing, hiring, upgrading, setting work conditions, or discharging employees.
- Labor organizations cannot deny membership to qualified persons or discriminate in admission to apprenticeship programs
- Employment agencies cannot discriminate in job referrals, ask discriminatory pre-employment questions, or circulate information that unlawfully limits employment.
- No media can propote or publish job advertisements that discriminate.
- Harassment on the basis of a protected class and retaliation are prohibited under law and enforced by MCCR.
- Additional protection is offered under the CROWN Act, which added to existing state law that race discrimination includes traits associated with race, such as hair texture, afro hairstyles and protective hairstyles.

Filing an Employment Discrimination Lawsuit

In Maryland, a discrimination claim can be filed either with the state administrative agency, the Maryland Commission on Human Relations (MCHR) or the federal administrative agency, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC).

How the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) Works

You can file a charge of discrimination by logging into the EEOC Public Portal EEOC Public Portal to submit an inquiry online and schedule an intake interview. An intake interview is the best way to determine whether filing a charge of discrimination is the right path for you.
